The Pharisees and Sadducees came up, and testing Jesus, they asked Him to show them a sign from heaven. ² But He replied to them, "When it is evening, you say, 'It will be fair weather, for the sky is red.' ³ And in the morning, 'There will be a storm today, for the sky is red and threatening.' "The propaganda that accompanied the Palestinian Intifada ('uprising') beginning in 1987 included an official Islamic denial that a Jewish temple existed and that Jerusalem was ever a Jewish city...However, this denial of the Jewish temple is a recent phenomenon. In the English edition of a guidebook to the Temple Mount written by the Islamic authorities in Jerusalem entitled A Brief Guide to Al-Haram Al-Sharif Jerusalem published in 1924 (and unchanged in all later editions through the 1950s), the following declarations are made concerning the Haram ("holy site"):

'The site is one of the oldest in the world. Its sanctity dates from the earliest (perhaps from pre-historic) times. Its identity with the site of Solomon's Temple is beyond dispute. This, too, is the spot, according to the universal belief, on which 'David built there an altar unto the Lord, and offered burnt offerings and peace offerings.'

... This document provides evidence to show that despite the present public denial of the historicity of the Haram as the Jewish Temple Mount, Islam did not hold this opinion for most of its existence."¹

"There are three main theories about the exact location of the temple. One theory, put forth by Tel-Aviv architect Tuvia Sagiv, says that the temple was situated at the southwestern corner of the platform near where the Al-Aqsa Mosque is today...A second theory is from Hebrew University physicist Asher Kaufmann who concludes that the temple was built on the northwestern corner of the platform about 330 feet (100 m) from the Muslim Dome of the Rock...A third theory says that the temple stood exactly where the Dome of the Rock is today."²

Rev. 6:1-2-Then I saw when the Lamb broke one of the seven seals, and I heard one of the four living creatures saying as with a voice of thunder, "Come." ² I looked, and behold, a white horse, and he who sat on it had a bow; and a crown was given to him, and he went out conquering and to conquer.
